Milford Oyster House Restaurant & Dinner Preview

Long renown for their pristinely fresh seafood served in a historic setting, dinner at the Milford Oyster House is not limited to oysters or even to seafood.

Chef H. Edwin Coss cooks in an assured New American style, innovative and unpretentious, that relies on the freshest ingredients, instinct and precision for his unerring marriages of flavors and textures.

The new location's main dining room displays exposed stone walls and an inviting fireplace, while their tavern area sports a pool table for a more casual atmosphere. New with this location are selected liquors, single-malt scotches, wines, and many beers on tap to compliment the diverse selection of meals available.

The restaurant is located on the bank of the Milford Creek in a historic stone mill constructed in the 1800s, on Route 519 in Milford borough (92 Water St.)

Cash Bar Reception, followed by dinner.
